P.F. Chang's Invites Diners to Satisfy Their Culinary Curiosity With New Menu Items Designed for Exploration and Sharing

Restaurants now offer small plates, sushi and extended "Hours of Happy" happy hour

Scottsdale, Ariz. (May 6, 2015) – P.F. Chang's, an upscale Asian-inspired restaurant with locations nationwide, is introducing a new menu featuring shareable small plates, hand-rolled sushi and an extended happy hour. The menu is an open invitation to diners to explore delightful flavor combinations and try and share new dishes that will satisfy their culinary curiosity.

"More than 20 years ago, P.F. Chang's changed the landscape of American restaurants by introducing authentic Chinese cuisine to consumers in an upscale way," said Philip Chiang, founder of P.F. Chang's. "Today we continue to innovate with fresh, bold Asian-inspired cuisine that takes diners on a culinary exploration, and our new small plates and sushi is part of that."

P.F. Chang's Creative Culinary Chef Yuji Iwasa and Beverage Director Mary Melton are behind the new menu evolution, which includes hand-rolled sushi as well as inventive small plates and handcrafted cocktails. These new menu items also hold a lower price point as many offerings range from $5-$10 at most P.F. Chang's locations*.

"This Asian-inspired menu offers an unexpected twist on P.F. Chang's more traditional fare," said Iwasa. "Our ingredients and flavor combinations were carefully chosen to appeal to a variety of palates but also win over the most discerning of diners who enjoy exploring and sharing new flavors. That's why we created small, shareable plates like our Jicama Street Tacos—each delicious proof that P.F. Chang's is always bringing something new to the table."
